The theater city, when in combat, is in the middle of the fifth regiment, and the sixth regiment to the left. People who entered the door on their knees were the city of the fifth regiment. We do not attach any importance to this fact. The fifth regiment entered the theater, and the words marched to the door by the front of the audience. It was on this touch, raised, and raised, until the foundation, the base of the fifth regiment, which formed the foundation of the fifth regiment.

General Lee organized the Army of Virginia on the 20th of May, 1861, in Norfolk, Virginia, with a force of 10,000 men. He was appointed Commander-in-Chief of the Confederate States Army on February 6, 1862, succeeding General Joseph E. Johnston.

The 101st Airborne Division was activated in September 1956 at Fort Campbell, Kentucky. The division was deployed to Europe during the Cold War, participating in various exercises and operations. Its famous training exercise, known as "Operation Desert Storm," took place in Saudi Arabia in 1990, prior to the Gulf War.

HISTORY OF THE 101ST AIRBORNE DIVISION
In the final days of World War II, the 101st fought in Alsace and spearheaded the drive to Berchtesgaden. The 101st story began at Camp Claiborne, Louisiana. Shortly after activation, the Division moved to Fort Bragg, North Carolina. Following training in England, the 101st departed for North Africa.

The 101st was assigned to Operation Marne, the greatest airborne operation of World War II, which dropped into enemy-held territory in the darkness of night.

After further training in England, the Division was ready for its first combat mission by spring of 1944. Over the next few months, the Division saw action in the early morning hours of June 1944, the 101st "Screaming Eagles." Following the invasion of Fortress Europe, the Division fought in the Ardennes Forest, the Battle of the Bulge, and the drive to Austria. The 101st became its first division Commander and is now known as the "Father of the American Airborne."

To all our friends:

Malaria Prevention

We are pleased to inform you that we have successfully taken steps to ensure the safety and health of our community. Since the recent outbreak of malaria, we have been working closely with health officials to implement effective prevention strategies.

Malaria is a disease that is transmitted by mosquitoes. The larvae of these insects feed on blood, thereby spreading the disease to humans. To prevent malaria, it is important to take the following precautions:

1. Use mosquito nets: Cover your bed with a mosquito net at night to protect yourself from mosquito bites.
2. Spray your home with insecticide: Regularly spraying your home with insecticide can help reduce the mosquito population.
3. Avoid standing water: Mosquitoes breed in stagnant water. Clear out any积水 areas in and around your home.
4. Wear long-sleeved shirts and trousers: Covering up can help protect you from mosquito bites.
5. Use repellents: Apply insect repellent to exposed skin and clothing to prevent mosquito bites.

By following these guidelines, we can work together to reduce the incidence of malaria in our community. Thank you for your cooperation and commitment to your health and safety. Let us continue to work together to maintain a healthy and malaria-free environment.

Yours sincerely,

EXTENSION OF FOREIGN SERVICE TOUR

Voluntary extension of Foreign Service Tour can be made by any interested soldier. The soldier must have been in country at least six months before he can apply for extension. The extension can be made for the early separation program (150 day early release) or for reassignment within the battalion or with other units in country.

Individuals desiring an extension for the early separation program must so state in his request. Under this program the individual may extend his tour so that upon his DEROS, he will have 150 days or less left prior to his ETS. Then upon his DEROS he will be separated from the service.

Individuals desiring reassignment within the division or in country must submit their request for extension of foreign service tour between the sixth and third month prior to DEROS. Personnel action's will not be hand carried

IG APPOINTMENTS

The IG is available on Camp Evans by appointment only. Any individual having a problem that he thinks merits the attention of the IG, goes to his LSO and presents the problem. If the LSO cannot solve the problem, he will send the individual to the Battalion Adjutant who will listen to the problem and try to solve it. If it is still unsolvable, the individual is sent to the Battalion Executive Officer who will exert all influence and experience at his disposal to solve the problem. If the individual is not satisfied or does not feel that his problem has been solved, an appointment with the IG is made immediately. Since the IG is available at Camp Evans, the appointment is usually made the same day and the matter carried out expeditiously.

OFFICE FOR DEVELOPMENT

Complete an application for college admission to receive the specific degree you desire. Any information about graduate courses is available for college completion, but these courses are free. Ultimately, once the last course is successfully completed, the fee of $500 is due.

With the GRE tests, students are assessed based on the individual performance of the tests. Scores from these tests can determine the position of the graduate program. For admission to the five (5) graduate programs marked, they are available at the College of Education through the Office of Graduate Studies. Students are encouraged to seek additional information concerning the graduate program. Personal who have not graduated from the College of Education Development (GED) are encouraged to complete their education.
